Editor's Column

This week, Councilman Gunnar Norberg complained that last week's Pine Cone had not mentioned that, at the last city council meeting when a 23-cent rise in municipal taxes for 1965-66 was projected, he proposed a new ordinance and a bond issue to decrease, or eliminate, the tax increase.

The reason there was no report on these actions is that it was the intent to discuss both proposals in this column this week.

THE NEW ORDINANCE: Mr. Norberg proposed that presently uncommitted hostelry tax revenue amounting to $46,573 be removed from the city's hostelry tax non-reserve capital outlay fund and be placed in the general fund to pay for operating the city in 1965-66.

Both Mayor Herbert Blanks and City Administrator Hugh Bayless told Mr. Norberg such action would be an illegal act because the hostelry tax law requires that funds from the four percent tax on all overnight accommodations in Carmel may be used for capital outlay purposes only.

Mr. Norberg then moved that a new hostelry tax ordinance be prepared that would allow use of the $46,573 for municipal operational expenses. His motion died for lack of a second.

THE BOND ISSUE: Mr. Norberg opposed the city council's stated intent to use the $46,573 and other hostelry tax revenue accruing to the non-reserve hostelry tax capital outlay fund through December 1966, plus a possible sale of the present police station site, to finance the building of a new police station, corporation yard and disaster control center as Phase I of the Junipero Street civic center development. (No funds have been budgeted for this expenditure.)

Mr. Norberg contended that in a democracy the people had a right to decide, by means of a bond issue, whether or not such capital outlay expenditure should be undertaken. He wanted a bond election to decide whether the new facilities should be constructed and how any construction, if approved, should be financed.

Unfortunately, neither a new hostelry tax ordinance, nor a bond issue, would effect the 1965-66 tax rate.

Had Mr. Norberg's motion for the new ordinance met with a favorable vote, it would be early October before the law would go into effect. Until the law was approved, the city council could not, legally, commit any of the $46,573 for operation expenses on the basis of hopeful passage of an ordinance.

So, it seems, Mr. Norberg wanted to decrease the 23-cent tax rise by having the city project a budget on possible passage of a new law. If it did not pass, then what?

Should Mr. Norberg get the bond issue he wants, and it were voted upon favorably in the April, 1966, municipal election, apart from not affecting the 23-cent tax rise, it would prove costly to the city.

Let us look at the bond issue to finance the purchase of Sunset School by the city. It cost $25,000 to employ a firm of financial consultants to make a feasibility study and prepare a bond statement, also pay bond attorneys' fees.

Interest by 1984, when the Sunset bonds are paid off, will amount

Planners Ask Council To Decide If They Need Any Arts Commission Help

The Carmel Planning Commission, yesterday, in a report to the city council made it quite plain that it considers itself qualified and capable of keeping business district architectural design and site development in harmony with Carmel's characteristics—but the city council must make the final decision on this matter.

The report, prepared by an ad hoc committee, consisting of Acting Chairman Florence Josselyn and Commissioner William Godwin, was a reply to minutes of the July 14 arts commission meeting and a July 16 letter from the arts commission chairman, Mrs. Gunnar Norberg, both of which informed the planning commission that the arts commission was requesting the city council for permission to review all commercial area plans before a building permit was issued by the planning commission.

The report stated that, prior to 1947, the city council reviewed and approved plans for new business building before a permit was issued. However, in 1946-47, the council reinstituted the planning commission for the primary purpose of assuming this function, also in order to keep developments in harmony with the character of the city.

No criteria or definitions were stated in ordinances, or transmitted by the council for the commission's guidance or direction. As a consequence, since that time, the planning commission has formulated policies and definitions which, in essence, have been placed by the council in the municipal code. The design review section of the city laws now state as follows:

"The purpose of this section is to preserve the natural beauty of Carmel and to protect the village character of the city from the effects of inharmonious, bizarre, and out-of-scale developments.

"Design review specifically includes landscaping, exterior lighting, signs on both private and public property, the colors and materials of the exteriors of buildings, the use and relationship of open spaces of a site to the buildings thereon, the relationship of the proposed development to the adjacent public and private properties."

Yesterday's report emphasized that planning commissioners are continually evaluating design review methods and procedures to assure that these functions are maintained at a high level consistent to the growth of Carmel and the pressures of the times.

Architectural design and site development, therefore, are given great emphasis in the commission's studies and recommendations to the council on zoning legislation. In addition, a compre-

Humble Oil Co. Permit Denied

Monterey County Planning Commission Chairman Keith Evans cast the deciding vote last night when the Humble Oil Co. was denied a special permit to construct and operate an oil refinery at Moss Landing. Mr. Evans is a former Mayor of Carmel who now resides in the Mission Tract.

He was supported in the 5-4 vote by both the county planning commissioners from Carmel Valley, Willard Branson and Dr. Edward P. Marcucci, also Leon Stutzman, the commissioner from Monterey.

Commissioner Peter Cailotto of Salinas also voted against the permit. Those who favored it were Commissioners Henderson, Krishun, Mansfield and Wilbur.

Prior to opening the third public hearing on the Humble Oil permit last night, a list of 31 controls was read.

The consensus of commissioners who voted against the permit was that these controls, although stringent, would not protect the county from undesirable development.

Earl Moser and Charles Kramer, co-chairmen of the Citizens Committee for Clean Air, gave factual, masterful presentations against the permit. Others who opposed it included Councilman Gunnar Norberg, who presented a Carmel city council resolution. State Senator Fred Farr of Carmel sent a telegram cautioning the commission against favorable action.

A Clean Air Committee petition opposing the permit, with 15,000 signatures, was presented. At the end of the four-hour session which closed after midnight, Mr Kramer thanked the 200 women who had sat at tables in Carmel and elsewhere to obtain these signatures.

He exulted over last night's victory and expressed the hope that Humble Oil Co. would not ask the county's board of supervisors to consider granting the special permit. This is the next legal step possible.

Arts Inc. Outlines Plans For Possible Multi-Million Dollar Cultural Center On Sunset Site

Proximity to patrons who will pay to occupy 600 off-street parking spaces is a prime consideration in choosing a site for a $5½ million dollar cultural center, including a 1,200-seat theatre, 1,500-seat concert hall and an art museum, members of Arts Inc., told Sunset Commissioners on Monday night.

They also indicated that Carmel's Sunset center site best meets this requirement among several sites being considered by the nonprofit organization, but any decision on Sunset depends on the interest in the Arts Inc. project expressed by the city and assurance that the paid parking will be approved.

Arts Inc. member Malcolm S. Millard told commissioners that revenue from the paid parking would be the economic base for operation of the multi-million dollar project. Kenneth Ehrman, another Arts Inc. member, upheld this statement and emphasized that any lease between the nonprofit group and the city should specify that the paid parking be assured and that the city could veto development "up to a point." The point, he inferred, was aesthetic grounds.

A third Arts Inc. member, Will Shaw, showed commissioners a site utilization study which could be applied to the Sunset School site. This showed an art museum at the northerly end, with a concert hall between it and the theatre at the south. Underground parking was shown under the latter two facilities with surface parking at the Tenth Street end of the Sunset site. The plan also showed four plazas and an open foyer connecting the music and drama buildings.

Mr. Shaw also emphasized that, to be feasible, the Arts Inc. development must have city approval for the parking arrangements. He stated each underground stall would cost $4,000.

Commissioner Admiral C. W. Fisher ascertained from Mr. Millard that $3 million dollars would be the cost of the site development and approximately $2½ mil-

Carmel All-Stars Win Little League Tournament Game

The All Star baseball team of the Carmel Little League took the Marina All Stars three to two in a wild, exciting game which began the Peninsula-wide tournament on Saturday.

Members of the team, picked from all the boys in the Carmel league, are Joe Nesbitt, Jimmy De Amaral, Albert Hood, Dan Yurkovich Jr., Jeff Canepa, Terry Seeders, Mark Goodrich, Kevin Cunningham, Craig Dickenson, Mark Fischbein, Keith May, John Aldrich, Tom Wecker, Mike Dormody and Chris Smith. Alternates are Gary Carpenter, who remains on the roster in spite of a fractured larynx suffered in practice, Ted Rainer and Tim Thomas. Bat boy, handicapped by a broken hand, is Alan King.

Jim Kelsey, manager of the All Stars as well as the Camera Craft team which won 13 out of 15 games to take the local championship, is assisted by Pat Dormody.

The Carmel players will compete against teams from Pacific Grove, Fort Ord, Marina, Carmel Valley, also the Seaside National and Seaside American.

Bach Festival Reviews

BY DOUGLAS TAYLOR

Before continuing reviews of the Bach Festival, I must refer to an unfortunate word printed in discussion of that fine artist, Robert Oliver. A sentence in last week's review of the St. Matthew Passion should have read, "The previous evening in 'Orfeo' he was extremely GOOD as Caronte." This is what I wrote. The error gave a completely wrong impression.

(Editor's Note: In transcribing Mr. Taylor's handwriting, the word "poor" was substituted for the word "good" in the above sentence. It was a regrettable mistake and emphasizes that typewritten newspaper copy eliminates the possibility of such errors. M.L.)

THE CHRISTMAS STORY, JULY 21

Preceding this performance by some 12 hours was a symposium at All Saints' Parish Hall with Dr. Raymond Kendall as a charming and witty moderator, Panelists were Dr. Virgil Whitaker, provost, Stanford University, and Dr. Lawrence Moe, chairman, music department, University of California.

Each of these erudite gentlemen spoke about Heinrich Shuetz, composer of "The Christmas Story," Dr. Whitaker as a literary scholar and Dr. Moe as a musicologist. The latter played various themes from the oratorio on the piano which illuminated the symposium. The whole discussion was most informative and helpful.

The performance of "The Christmas Story" at 11 p.m. at Carmel Mission Basilica opened with a stirring heralding fanfare played by Edward Haug on his post horn. This was followed by a procession of the soloists and chorale down the aisle with Conductor Sandor Salgo completing this impressive entrance.

The orchestra, and Kenneth Ahrens at the organ, accompanied, as always, superbly. The Schuetz music is very interesting and descriptive of the Nativity.

The hero of the evening was Tommy Goleeke who took over the principal part of the Evangelist at less than eight hours notice to replace Charles Bressler who was ill. This young tenor is a fine musician and he almost had to sightread this onerous and exacting music.

As the First Angel, Carmel's Norma Jean Hodges sang beautifully with clear diction and lovely quality of tone.

Herod was sung trenchantly by Ara Berberian and the Second Angel by Mary Esther Nicola who was excellent. (Her voice was discussed in detail when she was the singer in a recital on July 19).

The trio of Shepherds were Carole Burch, Jacquelyn Lang and Arlene White. They sang with good balance as also did the three kings, Robert Olson, William Lyon Lee and William Feuerstein.

A quartet of priests—Edward Jameson, Herbert Cabral, Robert Waterbury and Robert Bernard—produced some fine, rich tones. The chorale concluded the work with a paean of praise.

Next came another work by Schuetz, "Attendite, populo meus," scored for bass voice, four trombones and organ continuo.

This was sung magnificently by Robert Oliver whose great, sonorous basso filled the basilica with deep, rich tone.

The accompanying four trombones, played by Daniel Livesay, Jerome Jansen, Ron Bertucelli and Jack Sudmeier, produced gorgeous sound and Kenneth Ahrens played an impeccable continuo on the organ.

The final work was "In Ecclesiis" by Giovanni Gabrieli who was Schuetz's teacher. The chorale for this was divided, several singing from the rear of the basilica with trumpets and trombones. Priscilla Salgo provided the necessary rapport, from there, with her husband, Maestro Salgo.

The soloists from the pulpit were Tommy Goleeke singing a duet with Ara Berberian and later with Sue Hinshaw, soprano.

This was a most impressive evening of deeply religious significance.

RECITAL JULY 22

This joint recital by Marie Gibson, soprano, and Gretel Shanley, flute, accompanied by Ralph Linsley, harpsichord, and Jean Fulkerson, cello, was a sheer delight.

The soprano opened with a group of songs by Henry Purcell. These were sung quite perfectly with clear diction, lovely tone and, showing in the last song "What can we poor females do?", a delicious sense of humor.

Next Gretel Shanley performed C.P.E. Bach's "Sonata in A minor for Unaccompanied Flute," then duetted with Marie Gibson in a J. S. Bach aria, "Be silent, ye flutes." In both of these this young flutist played extremely well with a beautiful tone and remarkable agility.

Two cantatas, one by Handel, "Nel dolce dell'oblio," the other, "Solitude avvene" by Scarlatti, were separated by another sonata for flute and harpsichord. This was by Benedetto Marcello. The cello in the largo movement produced a lovely mellow sound. The concluding aria in the Scarlatti made a cheerful syncopated finale to a most pleasant morning.

ORGAN RECITAL JULY 22

Continuing the "Clavieruebung" Part III, the second section recital was preceded, as on Tuesday, by the Prelude in E flat major and then followed the same pattern as in the first section—the vocal ensemble singing the chorales in hymn form, then the organ being played in two versions—large and short.

The Lord's Prayer, Baptism (a lovely tune), Penitence (a sad but peaceful melody) and The Last Supper were followed by the concluding Triple Fugue in E flat major triumphantly and magnificently performed by the highly accomplished organist, Ludwig Altman.

CONCERT JULY 22

This most varied concert had four quite different types of instruments appearing solo (in one case in duet), in concerto and sonata form.

Opening with Vivaldi's "Concerto in E flat major," Rosemary Waller performed as violin soloist, with strings accompanying her, with aplomb and considerable flexibility of style. At the end she was warmly applauded and most deservedly was presented with a bouquet in appreciation, not only of her fine playing, but for all her hard work as concertmistress with the orchestra and splendid obligatos with various soloists.

Then followed the Sonata for two trumpets and strings by Aldrovandini performed brilliantly by Edward Haug and Charles Bubb Jr.

The declamatory first movement, Allegro, led to the lovely tuneful Largo played with great style and the culminating Allegro brought an immense wave of acclamation from the thrilled audience.

The serene style of the first three artists was succeeded by a more temperamental visual display by that virtuoso of the viola da gamba, Eva Heinitz, happily sufficiently recovered from a cold to appear and delight the audience with a masterly performance of

Teachers And Principals Added To Carmel School District Staff

Sixteen teachers, a principal and an assistant principal have been added to the certificated staff of the Carmel Unified School District which now includes 149 persons, according to Medill Bair, district superintendent.

The new assistant principal will be at Carmel Middle School, formerly a junior high school, which this year will be operated as an intermediate school for children in Grades 5 through 8. He is Henry F. Chapple who comes here from Sunnyvale and has an M.A. degree from Arizona State University.

Six of the personnel new to the district will teach at Carmel High School. They are William F. Stone, art; Michael Williams, English; Michael Olivas, Spanish, coaching; James C. Kennaday, physics; Wallace W. LeValley, English, journalism; and Monty E. Feekes, history, driver training.

Five teachers have signed contracts to teach at Middle School: Miss Judy Spruell, Spanish; Alan E. Oppenhuizen, French; Miss Janet Hurley, girls' physical education; Mrs. Dolores Dresser, typing; and Miss Linda Thompson, fifth and sixth grade science and mathematics.

The district's new principal will be at River School. He is David E. Erskine who has an M.A. from the University of California, Berkeley, and comes here from Mountain View. Miss Susan Smith and Miss Dixie Arter both have been hired to teach second grades at River.

The new teacher at Woods School will be Miss Carrol Smaga who will instruct a combination third and fourth grade.

Mrs. Barbara Wilson will be a kindergarten teacher at Tularcitos School and Mrs. Jane Roman will instruct third and fourth grades at Captain Coooper School.

All but seven of the new personnel have had previous experience. Those teaching for the first time are Mr. Williams, Mr. Olivas, Miss Spruell, Mr. Oppenhuizen, Miss Arter, Mr. LeValley and Mr. Feekes.

Pfeiffer's "Concerto for Viola da Gamba and Strings."

The largo movement, a lament, was very touching and played with exquisite tone and a wonderful legato-line. The reaction of her listeners was shown at the end of the concerto—an appreciation of hearing this world renowned artiste.

Next came another performer with facial and physical mannerisms, pianist Istvan Nadas. He played Mozart's "Concerto for Piano K. 503 in C major" admirably accompanied by the orchestra.

This distinguished performer gave a superb and electrifying exhibition of pianistic technique which earned him a standing ovation. His fellow countryman, Conductor Sandor Salgo, participated in this, meeting Nadas on stage to accept the vociferous applause.

After the intermission, Bach's comic "Cantata No. 211" known as the "Coffee Cantata" was staged in miniature by John Bogard. The performers were his delightful wife,. Carole, who now showed her versatility in a kind of soubrette characterization of Lieschen. As her father, Ara Berberian once again proved his astonishing ability to get right inside his role, now buffo basso. James Schwabacher, was reincarnated, as it were, from the Evangelist to a "Jeeves-like" comedy butler.

The whole performance was enhanced by the charming visual and colorful setting, perhaps a little too broad in comedy for some Bach purists, but refreshing and amusing.

Apart from the comic aspect, the singing of all three artists was excellent. They were accompanied by members of the Bach Festival orchestra, directed, as ever, flawlessly by Sandor Salgo. At the end he received a coffee cup from Carole Bogard, a delightful touch of directional humor which gracefully rounded off the performance.

RECITAL JULY 23

This recital was a memorable occasion — a superlative performance by Istvan Nadas, a truly great pianist, of the "Goldberg" variations which were published as Part IV of the "Clavierubung."

His delicacy of touch, refinement of tone and lucid purity of expression were a revelation of pianistic virtuosity.

The variations on the Bach aria cover an immense gamut of styles and this master of his instrument played them all as if inspired by the very spirit of Bach and Goldberg.

A well known Carmel resident, an authority on piano music, told me after the recital, that this was the finest performance of the "Goldberg" variations that he had ever heard.

This recital was, indubitably, one of the highlights of the festival and it was a pleasure and a privilege to meet this charming and modest artist after the recital.

RECITAL JULY 24

The final recital of the 1965 Carmel Bach Festival was given by Eva Heinitz and Ralph Linsley in All Saints' Parish Hall.

Eva Heinitz, a great exponent of the viola da gamba, started proceedings with some very interesting and humorous remarks about composers who wrote for this instrument. Her favorite is Marin Marais, several of whose compositions she played, perfectly accompanied on the harpsichord by Ralph Linsley. (Before and during the festival he also had done much unseen work in general coordination of the festival.)

Eva Heinitz also played music by Couperin, d'Hervelois and C.P.E. Bach, Johann Bach's son.

I have already discussed her marvelous talent in my review of the July 22 concert and all that remains to be said is that her performance in a more intimate setting was just as effective.

On July 23, the opening concert of the festival was repeated. On July 24, Charles Bressler, fortunately restored to health, again performed the title role in "Orfeo," Monteverdi's opera.

The festival came to a triumphant end with a second presentation of Bach's sublime "St. Matthew Passion" on July 25.

Conductor and Music Director Sandor Salgo told me afterwards that the 1965 Bach Festival, his tenth here, was the finest of them all.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

"We have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."

This verse from I John will be included in the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon on "Love" this Sunday. A number of illustrations from the Bible will also be used to show the nature and power of God's love.

Mankind's need to bear witness to this love will be emphasized in this passage from the Christian Science textbook: "Simply asking that we may love God will never make us love Him; but the longing to be better and holier, expressed in daily watchfulness and in striving to assimilate more of the divine character, will mould and fashion us anew, until we awake in His likeness" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 4).

Reception For Frys

Local friends of the former Polly Gann will have an opportunity to meet her new husband, Samuel Edward Fry Jr., at a reception to be given on Sunday by Dr. and Mrs. Harry Lusignan at their Pebble Beach home. Present to receive guests will be Polly's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Gann, who attended the couple's wedding at the Episcopal National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., on July 24.

The newlyweds are spending part of their honeymoon in Mrs. Gann's Pebble Beach home before returning to take up residence in Washington, D.C., where the bridegroom is a foreign service officer in the State Department's office of Soviet Union affairs.

The bride is the daughter of author Ernest K. Gann of Sausalito, and the sister of Steven Gann of San Francisco and George K. Gann of Belvedere.

Polly has been employed by the State Department, working under Mrs. Estes Kefauver in the division of protocol. A graduate of Carmel High School and Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, she also attended Pomona College and the University of Geneva.

Her husband, the son of Mrs. Katharine Fry of Buffalo, New York, and Samuel Edwin Fry of New York, is a graduate of Dartmouth College, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Upsilon fraternity. He did postgraduate study at the University of Edinburgh and the University of Massachusetts.

The Frys will eventually go to Moscow when Mr. Fry's training is completed and he is assigned to the United States Embassy there.

Dinner For Alan Cranston

State Controller Alan Cranston will be the guest of honor at a no-host dinner tomorrow evening at the Mission Ranch. Reservations for the event, sponsored by the Carmel Women's Democratic Club, may be made by phoning Mrs. Edgar Viall at 375-1748.

Also in honor of Mr. Cranston, an invitational cocktail party will be held preceding the dinner at the home of Mrs. Sue Allen in Hatton Fields.

Mr. Cranston is officially on the Peninsula to be the guest speaker tomorrow at a luncheon meeting of the Monterey County Bar Association, where he will be introduced by State Senator Fred Farr.

Florence Hart Visiting

Friends, relatives too, of Florence (Mrs. Robert) Hart of Darien, Connecticut, are vying for a bit of the former Carmelite's time during her current visit here with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Doud. Other local ties include her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Brown of Carmel Valley, and her cousin, Senator Fred S. Farr. While in California, her plans include time in the Bay Area to look up old friends and to visit her mother, Mrs. Florence Sharon Brown, also a Carmelite for many years.

Among the social activities in honor of Mrs. Hart, affectionately known variously as "Brownie," "Flonnie," and "Charlie" (for Charlie Paddock), was a cocktail party last evening at the Doud home in Hatton Fields. The Browns, also, have invited a number of her old friends to greet her at their home tomorrow evening, and Miss Anita Doud has planned a luncheon for her.

At home with their father in Connecticut are her two youngest children, Martha and Guy William Hart. Another daughter, Lee Geisen, is now with the Peace Corps as a teacher in Tanzania, and her older son, John Geisen, is on duty with the Army in Korea.

Illustrious Forbears

A great-great-great grandson of General Jose Castro, defender of Spanish California against General John Charles Fremont, was born on July 17 at Community Hospital. He is Raymond Michael Narvaez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Narvaez of Carmel, and brother of 15-month-old Anna Marie Narvaez. His great-great grandmother, also on his father's side, was General Castro's daughter, Modesta, who married William Dana, a relative of author Richard Henry Dana and of Francis Dana, signer of the articles of confederation and a member of the Continental Congress.

The new baby's maternal grandfather is Jose Torrez of Carmel. His paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Narvaez, were native Californians and life-long Carmel residents. Mrs. Tom Brosnan (Lourdes Narvaez) of Carmel is his great aunt.

He is the nephew of Dennis Narvaez of Carmel, Mrs. Kenneth Wilson of Salinas, Francisco Torrez of Whittier, Mrs. Gene L. Smith and Mrs. Ellis Ruelas of Orange.

First In California

Suzanne Marie Laux, who arrived at Community Hospital on July 18, is the first native Californian for the family of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Laux of Mission Fields. The new baby, whose father came to this area to establish a chemical research laboratory, is the sister of Paul, Julie, Christopher, Mary Beth and Tom, all natives of Ohio. They are, their mother laments, eagerly "helping" her with the family addition.

Suzanne's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Laux of Shavertown, Pennsylvania, and Mr. John Hoffmann of Cincinatti.

Party For Ann McKeever

For her daughter, Ann McKeever, who will make her formal debut this winter, Alma Walker invited a number of the younger set, their parents and other friends to a delightful summer dance Saturday evening. Charlie Brown and His Peanuts played for dancing during the party at the Beach Club, which was decorated for the occasion with lovely arrangements of yellow and white flowers.

Ann, here for the summer, has been attending Miss Hewitt's School in New York and will continue her studies this fall in Massachusetts.

The Yateses Traveled

Mr. and Mrs. George Yates and their son, Van, have returned from a three and a half week motor trip, during which they inspected a number of the smaller colleges with a view to their son's future choice. Their travels took them through the Southwest, the Rocky Mountain states and part of the Northwest. They particularly enjoyed their stays in Colorado Springs and at Jackson Lake Lodge in Wyoming. Mrs. Yates, whose first view it was of this spectacular section of the country, says it seemed to her that they must have visited every national park there is.

Pine Cone Loses Salesman

Paul Fischbein, one of the Pine Cone's sterling salesmen, turned in his change for the last time this week, reporting sadly that he was leaving for New York with his parents, Lieutenant Commander Ernest Fischbein (USN) and Mrs. Fischbein, and his older brother, Mark.

Commander Fischbein, who has been president of the Carmel Little League for the past year, will be serving aboard the U.S. Navy ship, Great Sitkin, operating out of New York, so the family will make their home in the New York area.

The Jenningses Return

Friends of Walter and Mausita Jennings are delighted with their return from Baghdad this week after an absence of more than a year. Professor Jennings, a former instructor at the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School, has been teaching mathematics at Al-Hakma University, a Jesuit school in Baghdad, on a Fulbright grant. Mausita, an integral part of the area's musical life, was owner of The Browse Around Music Shop before she closed its doors, in May, 1964, to accompany her husband to Iraq.

Praise For A Worker

Anyone paying close attention to the 6 p.m. news on Channel 8 Monday may have caught a brief glimpse of Kit Elber filmed at her job in the finance office at Fort Ord, where she is one of the local students employed for the summer under President Johnson's Youth Opportunity Program. Kit, who will enter her senior year at Carmel High School this fall, was singled out for special praise by her superiors for her excellent work and cooperative attitude.

The versatile teen-ager, whose interests include cooking, sewing and surfing, is the daughter of Mrs. Sara (Sis) Elber of Carmel Point.

Massachusetts Wedding

The theme of a single rose was carried throughout the wedding and reception on Saturday when Carol Arlene Daboul, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Daboul of Framingham Center, Massachusetts, became the bride of Jon Sever Stuefloten of Carmel at Saint Bridget's Church in Framingham Center. The nuptial mass was read by the Reverend Fr. McCarthy, and James Savos, former college professor of the bride, sang specially selected songs.

Carol, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of imported ivory silk-faced satin. Re-embroidered alencon lace and seed pearls banded the neckline and sleeves. Bands of the same lace accented the gown's A-line skirt, and a detachable casque train fell from the shoulders. On her hair was a tall pillbox of matching lace with a five-tiered bouffant silk illusion veil, and she carried a single white rose.

Her attendants, dressed alike in full length sheath gowns of Ming blue silk chiffon, were Judith Danza, maid of honor, her cousins, Marni and Michelle Abu and Arnette Isaac, Carol Meleski and Mrs. Larah Peterson Daboul, her sister-in-law. Each wore a willow green ivy wreath on her hair and carried a single red rose.

Jon's best man was Herbert A. Daboul, the bride's brother. Seating the guests were George Daboul, another of the bride's brothers, Kenneth Hale, Philip Isaac, Raymond Paquette and John Peterson.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Daboul wore a full length sheath gown of robin's egg blue silk chiffon, styled with an empire waist, and a matching pillbox.

Mrs. Stuefloten chose a full length sheath of Paris pink silk crepe.

Following the ceremony, guests toasted the newlyweds with champagne at a reception held at the Maridor Restaurant in Framingham Center.

The new Mrs. Stuefloten attended schools in Framingham, Massachusetts, and is a graduate of Framingham State College. Currently a teacher in the Sudbury Public Schools, she also taught on the Monterey Peninsula for a year.

Jon, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stuefloten of Carmel, is the brother of Jerry Stuefloten of Santa Clara, Mrs. Jon P. Guzik II and Mrs. Thomas Crampton of Carmel. He graduated from Carmel High School, Monterey Peninsula College and San Jose State College, and is presently co-owner of Natick Music Studios.

The young couple will spend three weeks in Europe, after which they will make their home in Framingham.

Newlyweds Returning

Friends of General Clarence Ridley (USA Ret.) and Mrs. Ridley, the former Mrs. Gladys P. Kay, are preparing to welcome them home from their honeymoon in Hawaii. The couple's marriage took place on July 21 at the Episcopal Church in Mountain View, where the bride's son and his family make their home. A small reception followed the afternoon wedding, after which the newlyweds left for Honolulu.

Jane Skillman Engaged

Jane Skillman has chosen August 15 as the date of her marriage at Carmel Presbyterian Church to Dana Morgan of Palo Alto.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mrs. John Skillman of Carmel and the late Captain John Skillman (USN). She graduated from Carmel High School and has just completed her junior year at the University of California at Santa Barbara, where she is a sociology major.

Her fiance, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar A. Morgan of Palo Alto, is a technical arts major in his senior year at California Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo, where the young couple will make their home following their wedding.

The Doctor Has A Daughter

A welcome addition to the home of Dr. and Mrs. James Niebel of Rancho Aguajito is their new daughter, Cameron Prosser, who was born at Community Hospital on July 7. Cameron is the stepsister of Scotty Dewar and Chris, Gregg, Alan and Stuart Niebel.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mildred Prosser Riker of Carmel and of H. Lee Niebel of Palo Alto, and the grand-niece of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Denhart of Pacific Grove, Mrs. William Prosser and Miss Margaret Prosser of Carmel.

Marilyn Hurd Sets Date

Marilyn Hurd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hurd of Carmel Valley, and Joseph C. Thomas of Sacramento, whose engagement was announced in April, have set August 22 as the date for their wedding at Saint John's Chapel, Del Monte.

A graduate of Carmel High School, Marilyn met her future husband at the University of California at Davis, where she has just completed her sophomore year. She has one brother, Gordon Hurd of Campbell.

Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thomas of Sacramento, and the brother of Robert and Michele Thomas of Sacramento. He has accepted a position as a teaching assistant at Washington State College in Pullman, Washington, where the couple will live following their marriage. Marilyn will continue her undergraduate studies there, while her husband-to-be will be working toward his doctorate in chemistry.

Anne Was Surprised

A little planning between Don Borden, Howard Brunn and a group of mutual friends resulted in a complete surprise for Don's wife, Anne, on Saturday evening. Don delayed her arrival at home until the friends had gathered to give Anne and Don a housewarming which was promised them by Howard Brunn when they purchased their new home in the Eighty Acres.

The spacious house was built by Dr. Hermann Spoehr when he headed the Carnegie Coastal Laboratory in Carmel and its fame as a center of warm hospitality through the years was enhanced by Saturday's party—an expression of the esteem in which the party givers hold the Borden's friendship.

Building Inspector Attends

Carmel's building inspector, Richard M. Thomas, on July 22, attended the Watsonville meeting of the Monterey Bay chapter of the American Institute of Building Design. He was among seven of the ten building inspectors of this area who accepted an invitation to be a guest at the meeting.

Discussed were the 1964 Uniform Building Code revisions. This joint meeting of building inspectors and designers will be printed in a forthcoming issue of the national magazine, "The American Journal of Building Design."

The Sur Coast

By ELIZABETH FULLER JONES

SUMMER LEARNING, WORK AND PLAY

The old adage "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" may be very true, and many believe that its reverse is also true, "'All play and no work makes Jack a dull boy." At least for a large number of Jacks and Jills there is abundant opportunity to combine work with play, this summer, in an atmosphere that is making learning not only a joyous accomplishment for young boys and girls but also for those who are counseling and directing them. Within the foothills of the Sur Coast mountains, and deep within them, there have been continuous summer school and summer camp sessions since the beginning of the school vacation.

CAMP QUIEN SABE

Camp Quien Sabe, a wilderness camp, an activity of the City of Monterey Recreation Department, has just completed three one-week sessions for boys and girls within the ages of 8 and 14. At its remote location, high above the coast, surrounded by heavy growth of bay, madrone, oak and redwood, and where a gently flowing creek bisects the camping area, children have learned the art of living and working together in a true wilderness environment. They have learned the art of continual cheerfulness, the art of cooperating with others; have learned how to swim, to draw, to "cook out"; how to identify and appreciate the flowers, shrubs, trees and animals of the coastal country.

Each Monday, a group of about fifty, arrived by bus at the entrance to Palo Colorado Canyon. From there they journeyed by car shuttle to the point where they began a two-mile hike into their wilderness camp. "On the way in we choose a name for our group. I'm a Deer," one little girl told your Sur Coast correspondent the afternoon we visited camp, and we heartily agreed that she was a "dear." Other groups called themselves, "Termites," "Rolling Stones," "Rattlesnakes," etc.

During the years that Camp Quien Sabe has been in operation, members of the camp have had the opportunity of becoming a "Trailblazer" which is a recognition of their good behavior, good attitude and accomplishment during the days in camp. Many boys and girls come to Camp Quien Sabe, summer after summer, with the hope that one day they, too, will become a member of the "Trailblazers." An axe, a knife, an arrowhead and a golden tomahawk, each made of copper, or other metal, and strung with cord (to be worn about the neck), are awarded to those children that have passed certain tests, achieved certain skills and have attended camp for two weeks, four weeks and eight weeks, for the various degrees. An axe is likened to the tool used in hacking out a place in the wilderness, preparing a foundation for the house. The knife cuts a finer path, helps to make the walls, the camper is now learning to be a good citizen. The arrowhead symbolizes the roof of the house, the camper is now learning to assume a place of leadership. The earning of the golden tomahawk is the final degree. He has now passed all the tests, achieved all the skills, and gained a true love and appreciation of the out-of-doors and is thus eligible to become a camp counselor.

Director of Camp Quien Sabe is Max Mobley, assistant director of recreation for the City of Monterey. Mobley, a graduate of San Jose State College, came to his present position five years ago and to Camp Quien Sabe this season. Assisting the director was Lynda McKinstry, formerly a counselor with the City of Riverside day camp and for several summers associated with the Christian National Conference Grounds in Kings Canyon. The six groups at camp each had their own counselor who supervised their activities, helped them perfect their skills and spent leisure hours singing with them, talking with them or in practice for the evening program. Counselors were from Monterey High School and Monterey Peninsula College and included Mimi Thorngate, Gary Gasperson, Martha Henney, Chris Link, Georganne Demarest (Miss Monterey County of 1964 and soon to enroll at Fresno State), Ken Tanaka, physical education major at MPC and director of the evening camp program, and Todd Bliss who was the general assistant about camp.

Camp fare was prepared under the direction of Tony Sands, former mess steward with the U.S. Army who came to Fort Ord in 1946. Assistant cook was Melissa Newlin, a junior at MPC. Annette and Paul Wilhelm of Carmel High School served as kitchen helpers.

On our day at camp we enjoyed a delicious and abundant dinner of spaghetti and meatballs, tossed green salad, buttered sour dough bread and watermelon for dessert. Between the evening ceremony of flag lowering, and the dinner hour, we had the interesting experience of viewing the collection of exhibits made by the various groups. There were sand castings (made the day the children "hiked out" to the beach). There were plant identification boards, knot boards, planters made of redwood, stones, leaves and twigs, little boxes made of ice cream bar sticks, etc.

RANCHO POINT LOBOS

Not far off Highway One, up San Jose Creek, is Rancho Point Lobos Summer Camp, a boarding and day camp for boys and girls in the age group of 6 to 14. Here, half the day is devoted to art and half the day to riding, and in between these two major activities are many opportunities to discover and appreciate the special beauty of the coastal country in this particular area.

Rancho Point Lobos is owned and directed by Sue Sally Hale (Mrs. Alex S. Hale, mother of two children, aged two and a half years and seven months), who tells us that it is not only her desire to teach children her favorite subjects of art and riding but, through these avenues, there is the chance to help children in other ways during the important years of character building. The child is taught how to correctly care for a horse, to handle it, bridle it, saddle it, etc. He is taught that he has a responsibility to an animal and that the animal is to be treated with respect, consideration, kindness and love, just as one should treat any fellow being. There are 21 horses at Rancho Point Lobos and many more available from a nearby ranch. There are a pig, chickens, a woods, a nearby beach, a canyon, and a wonderful place, above the ranch, for overnight camping trips.

Sue Sally Hale (born Sue Sally Jones, the daughter of a well-known motion picture rider, Grover Jones) has been riding since the age of three. Her father died when she was a small child but her mother constantly encouraged her to continue riding and perfect herself in this activity. The encouragement she received then, and her own determination, has helped to achieve the measure of success she is experiencing today at Rancho Point Lobos. Sue Sally is well qualified to teach riding, in its many specialized forms. She says of herself "I literally put myself through school giving riding lessons." She spent six years in college "taking every course I could find in illustration and cartooning"—attended the University of California at Los Angeles, Chouinard Art School and received her B.A. from San Fernando State College.

Assisting in the care and counselling of the children at this flourishing summer camp, are six counselors "including a student from Harvard University."

Next season polo will become an important feature of this unique summer camp. A polo field, covering an area from the ranch to Highway One, is presently being levelled and will soon be planted and maintained for next year's inevitable use.

with new refrigerator-freezers.

No more pulling and tugging to get ice trays or frozen foods out of the freezer compartment. No ice to clear from anyplace in the refrigerator. New refrigerator-freezers keep frozen food cold without frost, and without defrosting—ever. And, thanks to improved design, new models hold up to 50% more food than old models—in the same kitchen space. That means fewer shopping trips! A new refrigerator-freezer is a work-saving convenience, a good investment. Your appliance dealer can prove it to you.

White Oaks 'Brigadoon' Production Is Enchanting

The White Oaks Theatre production of "Brigadoon" is enchanting and tasteful.

The fascination of the 200-year-old Scottish Highland village and its people is delightfully displayed in Joan Larkey's charming sets and lighting, Jim Swain's picturesque costumes and the sensitive direction and choreography of Gale Peterson, also in the fine acting and singing of the young members of the White Oaks Summer repertory company and the accomplished musical direction of Chris Nance.

All this adds up to an evening's entertainment which is unsurpassed on the Monterey Peninsula and far beyond.

From the moment the village of Brigadoon emerges from the magical mist of a Highland Glen until the closing scene when Fiona leaves the misty swirls to greet her beloved, the Lerner-Loewe musical cast its spell over the White Oaks audience on Sunday evening.

And the humor of "Brigadoon" is admirably handled also. Honors in this category go to Mary Pattie for her interpretation of Meg Brockie, the lass who unashamedly pursues men and sings "The Love of My Life" and "My Mother's Wedding Day," also Mike Byers who subtly played the role of Jeff Douglas.

Tracy Carr as Fiona MacLaren is a lovely heroine with a lovely voice and it is not incredible that an urbane New Yorker, Tommy Albright, played by Sergei Tschernisch, should lose his heart to her and be willing to return to the enchantment of Brigadoon. Together they sing "Heather on the Hill," "Almost Like Being in Love," "There But For You Go I" and "From This Day On" so delightfully that Sunday's audience reacted with spontaneous applause.

Tracy Carr also touchingly sings, with the girls of the cast, "Waitin' For My Dearie."

The role of Jeanie MacLaren is winningly portrayed by Sandra Lundwall who dances a notable pre-wedding number. Her stalwart love is Charlie Dalrymple, ably played by Robert Santero. His singing of "I'll Go Home With Bonnie Jean" enhanced the joy of the evening, as also did his duet with Jeanie, "Come To Me, Bend To Me." Their wedding scene is amazingly well produced and colorful.

But even in magical Brigadoon there is one discontent. This part, that of Harry Beaton, was played by handsome Sam Hasson with such excellence that he won the sympathy of the audience. To protect the spell of the village he is sacrificed when he tries to escape into the world and it is his funeral that gives Angene Feves the opportunity to heartrendingly interpret deep sorrow in dance form.

The dancing throughout the White Oaks "Brigadoon" is remarkable but, perhaps, a little repetitious with not quite enough contrast between numbers.

Members of the cast who individually contributed to the success of "Brigadoon" are John Logan as Mr. Lundie, the dominie; Trish Mahoney as Jane Ashton; Michael Collins as Archie Beaton, the father of Harry; Ron Stark as Angus McGuffie; John O'Connell as Sandy Dean; and Ken Bachtold as Andrew MacLaren, the father of Fiona and Jeanie.

Villagers are Robert Davis, Skip Haston, George Gray, Mitch Marco, Esther Makinster, Linda Winnie, Barbara Gene Makinster, Sheila Jo White; Linda Boblitt, Chris Flynn, Shirley Eoff, Kitty Hendrix and Tonia Brandt.

Sally Hughes Church is the producer of "Brigadoon" which will be repeated at White Oaks Theatre each Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 8:30 p.m. through August 8. M.L.

San Juan Bautista Flea Market Aug. 1

The second annual Flea Market will be held in San Juan Bautista on August 1. Sponsored by the San Juan Chamber of Commerce, the day-long event attracts buyers and sellers from throughout the mid-California area.

Reservations for over 250 booth spaces have already been received. Items for sale will include antiques, used articles and appliances, "old things," and specialty food such as doughnuts, berry pie and cobbler, pizza, and Spanish food.

Cathy P. Hamlin of Carmel has reserved space in the market.

A pancake breakfast ($1.00) will be served near the Third Street booth area from 6 a.m. to 11 a.m. A barbecued chicken plate lunch will be served from noon to 4 p.m. for $1.50 per plate.

Strolling musicians will entertain throughout the day, and tours of the Old Mission and State Park museums will be available.

Malcolm Moran

The Reverend Robert O'Brien of the Peninsula Unitarian Church officiated at graveside services July 21 in Cementerio el Encinal, Monterey, for Malcolm Donald Reeves Moran, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm E. Moran Jr. of Carmel Highlands. The baby, who was born on April 23, 1965, died unexpectedly at his home on July 18.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two half-sisters, Kim and Susan Painter of Carmel Highlands; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hall of Detroit, Michigan; and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Moran Sr. of Bainbridge Island, Washington.

The Mission Mortuary was in charge of funeral arrangements.

According to the Monterey County Coroner's office, the infant's death was caused by asphyxiation.

Humble Oil Co. And California Standard Separate Companies

Guy M. Carruthers of the public relations department of the Standard Oil Company in San Francisco called on the Pine Cone recently to point out that his company is not associated with Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, a subsidiary of which is Humble Oil Company.

The U.S. Supreme Court, formally, officially and irrevocably dissolved any connection between the two companies in 1911, Mr. Carruthers emphasized.

The only association of the two companies in California is a joint exploration and production project, the offshore drilling platform at Santa Barbara operated by Standard Oil of California and Humble Oil Company. A similar partnership with Richfield Oil Company is being carried on in Alaska.

These projects are a means of spreading the tremendous costs and great risks inherent in finding, proving and producing oil today, Mr. Carruthers pointed out. The partnerships exist only for such particular ventures and establish no kinship between the operation of either of the companies, which, in fact, are competitors.

The SUR COAST

road they never stop learning, all their lives. I am terribly excited and enthusiastic about my summertime program where I am having the opportunity of helping at least one group of children 'get on the road.'" These words from Mrs. Nancy Bottero, school teacher at the unusual, one-room school, Palo Colorado, on the Sur Coast, describe the summer school activities of this progressive and happy instructor.

Nancy Bottero, prior to her marriage and her now all-absorbing role as school teacher and mother of a pre-schooler daughter, Cynthia, was engaged in probation work with Monterey County. She explains, "I wanted to bring the atmosphere, the ungraded approach to education, so much a part of my one-room school, into a summer program and I'm really thrilled that this has become a reality.

The idea for such a program expanded for months prior to the opening of its six-week session—a program designed to bring together children of a wide span of ages, social and economic backgrounds, where they could work and play and discover together.

This summer school, named SABL (a name chosen by the children) stands for the words "seek, ask, believe and learn." SABL's sessions include 25 children in ages 8 through 14.

Saddle Mountain Recreational Park in Carmel Valley is the locale for this summer program. There are certain basic rules to follow, in a disciplined, yet informal atmosphere. Activities fall into three general categories: Academic: basic subjects for students who wish to work on a particular topic—attention is also given to those who need "reinforcing needed skills, such as reading, writing." Swimming: Group lessons (Mrs. Bottero is an accomplished swimmer and holds a water safety certificate) as well as recreational swimming at the close of each day's session. Outdoor activities: these include hiking, river walking, nature walks, collecting music, art, dramatics and science projects.

Each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon, Robert D. Beeman, a marine biologist, presently on leave of absence at Stanford University's Hopkins Marine Station, where he is studying for his doctorate (next year he will be assistant professor of marine biology at San Francisco State College) comes to the school to help the children with their science projects.

The day we visited, the session was well under way in the rustic building converted to a schoolroom. The children were seated about long, rectangular shaped tables, attired in bathing suits, surrounded by a variety of specimens they had "collected on a river walk," each child so deeply engrossed in the discussions being led by Mr. Beeman, that none noticed that a visitor had arrived.

Assisting Mrs. Bottero as counselors are Jinx Snow, daughter of an Army family, who, during the years they were stationed in Bangkok, Thailand, worked as a counselor in a camp on the River Kwai. "Jinx" is an avid rider, and in fact was "discovered" by Mrs. Bottero when she was giving riding lessons shortly before the opening of SABL. Another counselor is Roger Riley, a former student at Palo Colorado School, and now in his second year, on a scholarship, at Andover Academy in New England.

In the several years that the ungraded approach to education has been in operation at the Palo Colorado School, Mrs. Bottero has found that it has worked well. She has also found that the same good results are being reflected in this summer school experience and that the younger children are reaching up to follow the example of the older ones and the older ones striving to be good examples. Often, she says, the question has been asked, "How can you teach children of such a span of ages—all in one room—all at one time?"

"It is not difficult—it is not theory — it works," this joyous teacher explains.

"I find that when I expose the children to any given subject, they find out what they can do, and they do it. The very young absorb what they can and you would be surprised to see how much they can absorb. Children need only to be exposed. As a teacher I need only open the door and help them to learn how to learn—they do the rest."

In compiling a 40-year perfect attendance record in this and other chapters, Mr. Meech has held every office and been chairman of each committee of the organization. He has also served on important committees of International Kiwanis and was recently cited by its officers for his contributions.

to $274,000, or approximately half of the original cost of the bonds.

Using these costs as a basis, a bond issue to finance the Phase I civic center construction would mean $25,000 added to $242,000 or $267,000.

Were the bonds then approved and paid off over a 25-year period like the Sunset bonds, interest could amount to approximately half of the $267,000 or $133,500.

Total cost to the city, even if paid off with hostelry tax revenue, not property taxes, as in the case of the Sunset bonds, would be $400,500.

Therefore, it would appear, Mr. Norberg wants to pay $158,500 for the privilege of a bond issue, or, in other words, other city councilmen favor paying cash for the Phase I civic center construction instead of undertaking costly time payments.

Twice this week, Mr. Norberg has tried to explain to me that the city council, by not approving his motion for a new hostelry tax ordinance which would allow hostelry tax revenue to be used for municipal operational expenses, also by not favoring a bond issue for a new police station, corporation yard and disaster center, is, in effect, raising the tax rate to finance capital outlay expenditure which should be, democratically, paid for by bond issue funds.

Each time I have been unable to follow his reasoning.

Each time I have said that the people of Carmel did not object to the hostelry tax revenue being used for capital outlay purposes only when the present hostelry tax law was passed.

Each time I have pointed out that the city council, as elected representatives of the people, are empowered to expend hostelry tax funds for capital outlay purposes such as the civic center.

Each time I have emphasized that Mr. Norberg met only the democratic process when his proposals were voted down 4-1.

Each time, I have stated that the present intent of the council, to me, is to get necessary facilities for the city at the lowest cost.

Each time I have stressed that the major part of the proposed tax rise is attributable to the cost of operating Sunset School as a municipal cultural and community center.

Each time I have remarked that neither of Mr. Norberg's proposals could affect the 1965-66 tax rate.

And, each time, Mr. Norberg sighed in despair.

But the Pine Cone has carried out its intent to mention that, at the last council meeting, Mr. Norberg made two proposals in an endeavor to decrease the tax rise which the city council will probably approve next Wednesday evening.

Mr. Norberg will then, again, have a democratic opportunity to vote "No," if he so wishes. —M.L.

Free Concert Sunday

The Carmel Arts Commission, in conjunction with the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Musician's Union Local 616, will co-sponsor chamber music concerts at the Forest Theater on Sunday and August 15.

The concerts will feature the Beyer String Trio, whose members are Helen Beyer and Erwin Gordon, violinists, Elaine Beyer, cellist.

For Sunday's concert the trio will perform Beethoven's String Trio, Opus 9, No. 2, in D Major; the Mozart Quartet in D Major for flute and String Trio; and the Brahms Quartet, Opus 60, for Piano and String Trio.

Planners Ask Council To Decide If They Need Arts Commission Help

hensive understanding and control of these two matters is an implicit part of Carmel's general plan formulated by the planning commission and approved by the council and citizens.

The report also indicated that certain rules of procedure, adopted by planners and approved by the council, provide an orderly means for one public body to establish liaison with another.

However, considering the arts commission request to the council, planning commissioners unanimously, yesterday, by adopting the ad hoc report, decided that it was up to the council to decide whether or not they need the assistance of arts commissioners in carrying out architectural design approval and site development control.

Therefore, planning commissioners decided to ask the council to advise them and the arts commission just what the council's policy is, also its delegation of authority, on both functions presently only responsibilities of the city's planners.

Other planning commission business yesterday included requesting the city council to ask the Monterey County Planning Commission and board of supervisors to grant no permits for oil drilling in Carmel and Monterey bays.

A request from Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Vasconcellos for a use permit and variance for a third story basement parking garage and a variance for a building frontage in excess of 80 feet was referred to the land use committee. Granted were a use permit for Thomas K. Hinsdale to establish two building sites on Scenic Drive south of Ocean; a variance and use permit for Roger Smith Jr. to reduce the area of a building site on Monte Verde between Second and Third; a variance permit for Frances L. Cole to reduce a setback for a carport on Casanova between Ocean and Fourth.

Denied was a variance permit for Lois Renk Bernard to increase coverage for her residence on Mountain View at Santa Rita.

CARMEL HILLS BURGLARY

The theft of approximately $200 in currency and coins was discovered last night by Eugene C. Perry when he returned from work to his residence on North Carmel Hills Drive. According to the Monterey County Sheriff's office, the burglar apparently climbed over the roof to a rear sundeck and entered the house through an unlocked sliding glass door.

William Burkett Announces Only Home-Owned Bank On Peninsula Sold To United California Bank

The Security National Bank of Monterey County, with six banking offices on the Monterey Peninsula, will be merged with United California Bank, the fourteenth largest bank in the United States and the third largest statewide bank in California, also the buyer of the bonds to finance Carmel's $575,000 purchase of Sunset School for a cultural and community center. The announcement was made yesterday in a joint statement by Francis S. Baer, chairman of the board of United California Bank, and William A. Burkett, president and chairman of the board of the Security National Bank.

The board of directors of each bank has approved this action and the merger will be consummated as soon as it has the sanction of the shareholders and banking supervisory authorities, including the Federal Reserve Board and the California State Superintendent of Banks.

Mr. Burkett said that the reason for the bank's merger is his poor health, but that all of the bank's present employees will be retained by United California Bank. He will resign from the bank when the merger is completed, then will continue only as a part-time consultant for United California Bank, and he and his family will continue to reside in Pebble Beach, he stated.

Mr. Burkett added that he would not have recommended the merger had his health been better, but doctors have advised his retirement.

United California Bank is an affiliate of Western Bancorporation, the largest bank holding company in the United States with assets totaling six and one-half billion dollars. Western Bancorporation owns 84% of United California Bank and the controlling interest in 23 other banks operating 506 banking offices in eleven western states.

The price paid by United California Bank for the stock of Security National Bank was reportedly four million dollars.

Although no announcement was made as to the basis of the exchange of stock of the Security National Bank for stock of the United California Bank, a reliable source said that it was the highest premium ever paid in California's banking history.

English Comedy Opens Tomorrow At Circle Theatre

"Billy Liar," the new English comedy by Keith Waterhouse and Willis Hall, will be the second summer production of the Golden Bough Players. It opens tomorrow evening at the Circle Theatre, with Nick Hovick in the title role which made a star of Albert Finney on the London stage.

Norman McPhee has directed and Carol McPhee has designed the production, which features Derek Napier Lawford, Helen Vogel and Jean McGill as the adult members of the Fisher family. The play relates their consternation and dismay at the unchecked imagination of teen-age Billy, who rebels against their narrowness by telling and living any lie which pops into his head. The imbroglios occasioned by his talent for fantasy are both hilarious and pathetic, making for an unusual and satisfying evening in the theatre.

Robert Barrett is cast as a buddy of the prodigious prevaricator. Layne Littlepage, Katrin Stoney and Anne Brown play three girls with whom Billy is simultaneously involved.

"Billy Liar" is one of a series of seven plays available on subscription to members of the Community Theatre of the Monterey Peninsula. Season tickets, good for one year, may be purchased at discount rates by applying at the Circle Theatre box office or writing to Box AL, Carmel. Information is also available at the Harrison Memorial Library.

Following Friday's opening, "Billy Liar" will play on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings for seven weekends, closing on September 12.

PUBLIC HEARING ON CUSD BUDGET

The board of education of the Carmel Unified School District will hold a public hearing Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Mariquita Brey Hall at Carmel High School on the district's 1965-66 budget printed on Page Twelve of this issue of the Pine Cone.

Amount set for publication is $2,421,125. This sum is expected to result in a four-cent tax reduction. Income from an estimated $4½ million rise in assessed property evaluation within the district is expected to result in a $2.53 school tax this year.

The Rhyming Philosopher

By Harry W. Fletcher

No. 118

Dear friends on Mars, now please accept
Apologies for brash remarks
We made because our rocket swept
So swiftly by, and saw no parks
Or boulevards, or straight canals:
"No sign of life!" Nor could perceive
If you are men or animals—
You're smiling? Yes, we're just naive.

We did quite well, I hear you say,
To get the gadget up that close;
But from six thousand miles away
What could our pictures diagnose?
Our astronauts in orbit flight
One hundred miles toward the stars
Discerned on earth no life in sight,
So how could we see things on Mars?

We'll try again, that's understood—
Our aim is peaceful, that you know;
But when we land there, if we should,
Don't let those Russians hog the show!

Arts Inc. Plans

lion the cost of the parking.

Mr. Millard said that he was sure these sums could be raised as it has been done in other communities such as Peoria, Illinois. He added that Arts Inc. has excellent cooperation from Peninsula cultural groups.

"My feeling is we have a lot of potential help," he stressed.

Mr. Millard continued by saying that it was the opinion of Arts Inc. members that they could "do as well without professional help" in raising needed funds.

Commissioner James Pruitt asked how the commission would have some assurance a feasibility study for the project would be made and how approval of arrangements could be worked out.

Mr. Ehrman was of the opinion that once the commission recommended Arts Inc. plans to the city council, and the council approved them, then Arts Inc., with the Sunset site tentatively committed to it, would be in a position to move on and work out these matters.

In later discussion, Sunset Commissioners expressed some doubt that proposed Arts Inc. plans for concessions to sell prints and art media, also a catering service to provide food, both in connection with the art museum, would be possible under Sunset bond issue limitations.

Dr. James Gilman worried that, should the Arts Inc. venture fail, the city would have to operate the facility.

"We have an obligation to the taxpayers not to get stuck with it," he declared.

"It's the first non-profit group to approach us. Let's have a look at it," was Mr. Pruitt's opinion, and a special meeting was decided upon by Chairman Peter Dyer. At this session further details will be reviewed including possible leasing of the Sunset site to Arts Inc. by the city.
